On one of his many visits this weekend to Heathrow, Peter Barton was asked by one of the Russian players he was escorting (whilst driving very quickly) to explain the speedometer. He proceeded to do this and was then hit by the question,

"Do you have speed limits in this country?"

"The race is on"

The organisers wish to give their heart-felt thanks to George Goodwin for going 3 hours out of his way to transport the chess equipment for the tournament. Sadly Peter Morrish was unable to transport this vital equipment as the engine dropped out of his van.

Also many thanks to the women helpers who did such a fine job in laying the carpet and setting up the tournament room.

Who is Ildiko Madl?

Ildiko Madl is a Hungarian WGM and is 18 years of age. She has been twice European Girls Champion and once World Girls Champion and has participated in two Olympiads. She goes to Grammar school and her hobbies include swimming, tennis, knitting and listening to music. Her ambition is to gain the IM title.

Who is Pavel Blatny?

Pavel Blatny is a 19 year old Czechoslovak studying law at Brno university. His chess successes include 2nd place in the World Junior Chess Championship in 1985 and more recent results include a bronze medal in the Czechoslovak Championships. He became an IM in 1986. His hobbies are football, tennis swimming and languages. He hopes to gain a GM title in the next three years.

After just one hour of play, the first complaint of the tournament was voiced. It came from David Norwood. His complaint was that his opponent's broken legs were taking up too much space under the table.

Round 2 - for bulletin:

The vultures of the English Press, hovering in hope of a CHILD BITES GRANDMASTER headline, were destined to be disappointed today. Sadler-Gelfand and Garcia Palermo-Adams were the two games which could have produced newsworthy upsets, but in each case the more experienced player gave his young opponent little chance.

Matthew Sadler, runner-up in last year's world under-14 championship, put up strong resistance after playing the opening too casually. A pawn sacrifice by Gelfand was not as impressive as it might have seemed, and he found himself having to work hard to score the full point.

Michael Adams, at sixteen the world's youngest International Master, always looked too passive against Garcia Palermo. The Argentine won a good positional game, keeping a strong grip throughout and finally infiltrating with his king to leave Adams squashed.

On the top board game, Thorhallsson fell victim to a quick blow to the throat from the broken-legged Sokolov's crutch.

Finally, after three hour's play in the second round, the tournament list was completed when Girinath arrived from India and Graeme Buckley arrived, after an almost equally difficult journey, from Wolverhampton. Both players were given a half-point bye for the first round, and were paired together for their second round game.

Leading Scores after round two:

Sokolov, Brunner, Gelfand, Gdanski, Serper, Horvath and Schulte	2
Rechlis, Brenninkmeijer, Garcia Palermo, Conquest, Stratil, Dzhandzhava, Girinath.....	1.5

ROUND THREE:

At the top end of the tournament table, three players maintained their 100% scores. As usual Sokolov was the first to win. Perhaps he feels that his broken leg might not stand up to long games. Gelfand won a pawn in the opening, then seemed to relax, as though expecting the game to win itself. Finally a little more hard work secured the full point in the endgame. Serper lost his chance to stay in the lead, apparently overlooking a tactical trick, when he had seemed to be holding a positional advantage for most of the game.

Back at the other end of the table, Gary Quillan, fresh from winning a colour TV set at Chester the weekend before this event began, lost his third game in a row and promptly took up smoking again. Too much television is evidently bad for your chess.

Svetlana Matveyeva scored the first win in this tournament for womankind against male opposition. Other notable recoveries were made by all three grandmasters who had lost in earlier rounds. They all won with some ease today.

Finally, Bellini and Blatny stopped playing at last. After their first round game had been adjourned three times and was still unfinished, they both adjourned their second round games. "I have played eighteen hours chess in the last two days", moaned Blatny. After 118 moves, they signed the peace treaty for their first round game sometime during round three. Now both players are back on schedule. They and the arbiters will be happy to get some sleep.

Rating Correction:

Philip Rossiter 1.1.88 FIDE rating was amended to 2330.

Who is Michael Adams?

Michael Adams is the World's youngest IM. He achieved 3 Swiss norms (2 in the British championships in 1986 and 1987 and 1 at Lloyds Bank in 1986) and then clinched his title in the NatWest Young Masters in October 1987 just before his 16th birthday. He recently achieved the only victory over World Champion Kasparov in the worldwide 10 board clock simultaneous. He goes to Truro School in Cornwall in the far South West of England and has won both the Cornish and the West of England championships on several occasions. He says his interests are snooker and music and he hopes to become a GM soon!

Who is Ivan Sokolov

Ivan Sokolov enables this tournament to claim a record. Whilst Michael Adams is the World's youngest IM Ivan is the World's youngest GM - a unique double?! He is a professional chess player with many fine results to his credit:- equal 2nd Lugano 1987, equal 1st Belgrade 1987, equal 1st Rilton Cup 1987/88, equal 1st Portoroz/Ljubjana 1987. However he has recently distinguished himself by becoming Yugoslav champion. He enjoys several types of music, swimming, skiing and basketball. This last game has led to his broken leg which has brought much publicity to the tournament!

In the chess profiles these are the ambitions of Ian Thomas:

"To play in another all-play-all, anywhere, it doesn't matter I don't mind travelling to Timbuktu if I have to and money isn't a problem, I'll hitch-hike and live in a tent or something...um...do you think I can have another chance before my first IM norm dies of old age?

Pretty Please...

PS I'd like to go to an Eastern Bloc country sometime"

The most important event in Oakham was undoubtedly 'England v. Rest of the World.....FOOTBALL!' It was the best game we've ever seen, "Know what I mean, Harry?"

The early skirmishes were quite uneventful due to the lack of a ball, but as soon as it turned up to play Dave 'Boy' Tonkin (England) whacked it into the back of the net- what a scorcher!

Undeterred, ROTW came fighting back, led by Gad 'the Lad' Rechlis, who latched onto a beautifully timed pass by Chris Ward (England), to lead 3-1. Both of the crowd went wild when England started to fight back aided by some ferocious tackling by Gyongyver Forintos, mostly from the floor. David 'Knocker' Norwood led the way with a delightful, if illegal lob over Mark 'Gizza Scotch' Burgess, who played excellently for a 'Scottish Goalkeeper'.

With the score at 5-4 to England, and the crowd sensing victory Gary Quillan and Neil McDonald put together one of the finest own-goals you'll ever see to level this historic match at 5-5.

The man of the match was undoubtedly Peter Barton, the ref, who after his performance on the whistle today, should seriously consider taking up the flute.

As Peter Wells said at the end "We got a result and I'm proud of the lads".

ROUND FIVE

After the fourth round successes of the English teeny-masters Adams (16) and Sadler (13), the newshounds had begun to slaver at the mouth again. Some of our serious press will cover chess tournaments, but mostly they need women or children as part of the story before they will take interest.

Matthew Sadler's fifth round win was bound to heighten interest. It brought him into the leading group of the tournament, and encouraged speculation that an International Master norm could well be in the offing.

Meanwhile, Sokolov stamped his authority on the event with a fine win against Garcia Palermo. White was groggy from the opening, and a few well-timed punches knocked him out. When the flag fell on White's clock, he was still thirteen moves short of the time-control.

Altogether, it was a disastrous day for the white pieces. With Black winning 15-4 with seven draws including a clean sweep on the bottom eight boards.

Back on the journalism, the top-board results brought Dzhandzhgava's name onto the leader board. Since this name looks rather like an imperfectly executed glissando on a word processor, it needed spelling out over the telephone to a copy-taker at the Independent. Her reaction could not have been predicted: "Oh, the usual spelling, then", she said.

(This bulletin, incidentally, takes pleasure in returning to him the G in his name, which was omitted from earlier numbers through disbelief.)

The Fax machine in the Press Office, previously used only for sending out reports, today came into use as a recipient of messages. We can therefore give the Round One results from the SWIFT World Cup tournament in Brussels:

Tal-Vaganyan (19 moves), Nunn-Speelman (20), Salov-Karpov (30), Belyavsky-Korchnoi (34), Timman-Nikolic (41), Andersson-Winants (48) all draws. Sokolov 0-1 Ljubojevic (52); Portisch-Seirawan adjourned.

ROUND 6

After White's dismal performance in round five, the Black players did even better today, winning by an extraordinary margin of 17-3 with six draws. Another notable feature of this round was the mini-match between England and the USSR, with the home side scoring only one draw from four games - and the two grandmasters (both with White, naturally) lost.

The most newsworthy game of the day was Matveyeva's defeat of Glenn Flear. Her pawn sacrifice in the opening left Flear retreating in disarray in order to defend against the black bishops. His position looked (and was) awful, but he hung on and even reached a probably drawn position when suddenly his flag fell. Flear had been too busy defending to look closely enough at his clock to realise the danger in time.

The other big news of the day was the defeat of Sokolov. After the Yugoslav had seemed to be running away with the tournament, suddenly the battle was open again.

ROUND SEVEN

White fought back this round, but still not well enough to make an even score. James Howell lurched into the lead, with a win against Blatny's King's Gambit, though the win owed more to Blatny's errors than Howell's fine play. Meanwhile Sokolov blundered in the opening to register his second loss in a row. Despite all this excitement, the best story of the day came off the chessboard.

Shortly after the start of play, the local bell-ringers began their day's tinkling with what was intended to be a four and a half hour peal. It may have been the shortest four and a half hour peal in the history of campanology, because the chessplayers did not appreciate the musical accompaniment to their thoughts.

An emissary dashed urgently to contact the vicar, who phoned the Quasimodo in charge of the operation. A large measure of pleading was needed to bring the affair (and the ringing) to a satisfactory conclusion. Their day's tinkling had, in fact, had to be booked some six months in advance.

Thank you, vicar, for your intercession.
And thank you head bell-ringer, for being persuaded by the vicar not to tender your immediate resignation. May you ring unmolested next time.

Round Eight

How to lose £1000 with a single move. Play through Howell-Gelfand and find out. It was a strange game. Gelfand short-sightedly peered at the board, sometimes bending so low over it with his head, that he threatened to join the pieces at table level. Meanwhile, he accompanied his thoughts with a juggling act, tossing two pawns from hand to hand under the table.

Howell's technique involved two styles of head-shake. His preliminary calculations over each move seem to be accompanied by a sideways shaking motion, which changes to a vertical vibration during the decision-making phase.

Back on the board itself, Gelfand's peering and juggling seemed to be getting the upper hand. Howell's 28. c4 looked like an attempt to create complications to rescue an inferior position. It left Gelfand a pawn ahead, though still with problems to solve. In a time-scramble, however, the Russian blundered away his extra pawn to let the white pieces flood in for the winning attack.

Another noteworthy result was Matthew Sadler's draw with Garcia Palermo. This gives the thirteen year-old a chance to make an International Master norm if he can win against a sufficiently highly rated opponent in the last round.

Round Nine

And so it all came to an end, but definitely not with a whimper. James Howell, the 19 year old modern languages student from Jesus College, Oxford, took first prize after a fine defensive effort. In all his last three games, he was under pressure, if not actually losing, but his coolness under attack secured him two and a half points from these crucial games.

Dzhandzhgava, Navrotescu and Serper made their I.M. norms, as did Matthew Sadler, whose 17-move final round win was the sensation of the last day. It was all over long before lunch time. This must be one of the best results by a thirteen year old in chess history.

As a whole, the tournament was an undoubted success. The players enjoyed themselves. The organisers' office maintained an air of total disorganisation throughout, under Mike O'Hara's supervision, and a good standard of play on the video games was achieved.

Finally, our thanks - both players' and organisers' to the Jerwood Foundation for making it all possible.
